

---

Contents

---

Acknowledgments	x
Series Editor's Introduction	xii
Preface. What would our ancestors say to each other?	xiv
Acronyms	xix
Introduction: "Siyi youth endala" (We are old youth)	I
Overview and aims	4
Research methods	7
Key theoretical and analytical constructs	8
Map of the book	15
"Siyi youth endala!"	18
1 Learning on contested grounds: Education, resistance, and youth development	22
Bantu Education and its legacy	22
Resistance to Bantu Education	26
Students redefining learning	32
The discursive terrain of the struggle	33
After 1976	35
The emergence of youth development	42
2 Shifting discourses, shifting identities: A history of the Joint Enrichment Project	46
The context of JEP's formation	48
Shifting discourses over time	49

3 “I better do something”: The Youth Work Scheme and its participants	87
JEP’s Youth Work Scheme: The Dube project	88
Lives in-between	89
Reasons for joining the YWS	100
From in-between to in transition	102
Repositioning episodes: A window into the YWS	105
4 “Gaining skills and moving around”: Repositioning at an orientation and a worksite	107
Orientation: Names, trust, and self-expression	107
Worksite: Enacting the concept of team	117
“A marvelous place”	122
5 “I can be somebody”: Negotiating identity in a deployment workshop	124
Inside a deployment workshop	125
Learning as a social practice	140
6 “A time-being thing”: Participants after the Youth Work Scheme	143
Persistent poverty and inequality in South Africa	144
JEP as a stepping stone	147
JEP as a touchstone	151
Still in-between	153
Looking to the future	162
7 “Too slow, too fast”: Staff after the Joint Enrichment Project	168
Education, agency, and socio-economic reproduction	169
Former JEP staff in 2018	176
The children of former JEP staff	184
Former JEP directors	187
A JEP board member looks back	189
“I wish we still had a JEP!”	190

8 “Something that can’t be lost”: The Joint Enrichment Project’s legacy	192
“An organization of note”	192
JEP’s enduring influence	193
Fragmented dreams: The youth development landscape in 2018	195
Initiatives reflecting JEP’s legacy	197
JEP’s reverberations	204
9 “In the next future”: Reflections on the Joint Enrichment Project, NGOs, and youth development	206
Building a second JEP story	208
NGOs in South Africa: Role and relevance	209
Challenges that NGOs face	210
The NGO paradox: Reproduction alongside transformation	212
Understanding the reproduction of inequality	214
Paths forward for youth development NGOs	216
Learning from transition: Questions for youth initiatives	219
Appendix	224
Table 1: Shifting discourses of learning at the Joint Enrichment Project	224
Table 2: Timeline of key activities reflecting JEP’s enduring legacy	226
Index	227